*Leonetti Cellar Cabernet Sauvignon
10-Year Vertical*

Leonetti Cellar is one of the most famous small wineries in the Pacific Northwest and perhaps the nation. Their wines have received lofty ratings by international wine media and are ranked as some of the best in the world. Leonetti was largely responsible for Washington State's rapid leap to prominence within the wine industry. With a cult-like following, Leonetti is sold primarily to a mailing list of customers during one whirlwind weekend each spring. This almost impossible-to-duplicate, ten-year vertical begins with the 1996 vintage and shows their wines going from great to greater.

Kait Rhoads – Blown Glass Vessel

Kait Rhoads' work is informed by her early experiences with weaving and sewing. Rhoads feels that "the simplicity of the rhythmic actions of these procedures and the strength that is derived from such repetition helps...translate the intellectual to the physical." She creates her piece using traditional Italian techniques. Rhoads' work has been shown in many museums and galleries including SOFA in New York, the Corning Museum of Glass in New York and the Hunter Museum of Art in Chattanooga.

This glass vessel demonstrates her affinity for creating unique and intricate patterns using traditional Italian glass blowing technique. This pattern is created using dark brown zanfrico canes with sidewise pick ups in black, white and red murrine. The colorful glass pattern adds a whimsical quality to this simple yet sophisticated vessel.

George C. Scott – Glass Art Piece

George C. Scott is a highly regarded local glass artist who creates pieces in which he juxtaposes simplicity of form with intricate treatments of texture and color. With Scott's more than 25 years of experience with glass, he clearly demonstrates an ability to coax the innate beauty of fused, blown and leaded glass. This striking, layered fused glass piece is green in hue with metallic accents in the glass. The rings of fused glass are then stacked to create an urn-like shape. This piece is a brand new exploration in glass from this innovative artist and is humorously entitled "Not a Vessel."

Riedel EVE Decanter

The sensuous, serpentine curves of Riedel's new mouth-blown, lead crystal EVE decanter are not only seductive, but functional. This design tour de force double decants your wine as it flows through the coiled shape. Serving wine becomes a performance as the decanter's twist and turns require the same movement by you – turning the decanter in a slow 360 degree rotation to 'charge' the decanter and allow the wine to pour. EVE is a decanter that also speaks – it emits a sound akin to the gurgle of the King Cobra as the wine makes its trip through the curvaceous swirl of glass. Eve's long graceful neck means that you can easily pour a guest across the table without moving from your spot.

Eric Hall Oil Painting: "Red Chair"

This stunning original oil painting on canvas was created by Bellevue-based artist Erik Hall. Represented throughout the United States, Hall's work is an intersection of contemporary style and classic elegance. This piece depicts a gracious landscape viewed through a richly draped window and has a beautiful, yet haunting quality.

Hall uses an adept process of laboriously layering common colors with unlikely ones as his basis for creating gesturing organic forms set amongst still, yet suggestive landscapes; compositions that speak with a silence. However, with this playfulness also comes a peculiar darkness, which Hall represents with the usage of dramatic shading and contrast. This intriguing piece would be the perfect addition to your home or office.

Grand Cru French Burgundy

"A very ripe, almost red pinot and cassis liqueur-like nose precedes rich, full, sweet and admirably concentrated full-bodied flavors that are at once robust yet elegant, delivering excellent length on the finely balanced finish. This is built to age and should easily last 25 to 30 years and unlike the typical Corton, the tannins here are really quite sophisticated."

Three Hundred Acre Wines in a Wooden Case

One of California's most flamboyant, talented, contrarian wine producers is Napa Valley's Jayson Woodbridge, the owner of Hundred Acre Winery. Woodbridge has been running in high gear since his debut in 2000. His 100% Cabernet Sauvignons are made primarily by him, with some consulting advice from Philippe Melka. All the wines are made with 100% of the estate grown varietals.

The 2006 Ancient Way Shiraz is a cult wine that is made from old vines in Australia's Barossa Valley. This vineyard yielded an incredibly low .8 tons per acre and only 600 cases of this wine were produced.
